Online Study Groups

Abnormal Psychology Online Study Group 4 cr with Dan Nyaronga

spaces avail 3 Adv./Liberal fulfills SUNY gen. ed. req | Social Sciences - fully

** Online Study Group **

This study is designed to introduce students to basic concepts and skills in the field of abnormal psychology. The goal of this study is to present the criteria for diagnosis, as well as become familiar with the symptoms which inform each diagnosis as coded in the DSM-IV-TR. Students are encouraged to think critically about the material covered and to gain a better understanding of mental and emotional disorders. Students are also encouraged to think critically about stigmas and labels associated with the mentally ill. Societal and cultural norms can influence what is considered "abnormal;" however, psychologists strive to empirically arrive at diagnostic criteria, etiology, prognosis, and treatments of mental disorders. Issues of the social construction of abnormality will be examined, as well as cross-cultural aspects of psychopathology.

American History 4 cr with Rhianna Rogers

spaces avail 6 Intro and Adv./Liberal fulfills SUNY gen. ed. req | Social Sciences - fully American History - fully

** Online Study Group **

This online study introduces students to the history of the United States (1800's-present) through the anthropological lens of ethnology. Students will compare the experiences of various ethnic, religious, and racial groups, and the results of social and gender relations. The intent of this study is to introduce the concepts, materials, and tools employed by the disciplines of history and ethnology and to help students develop writing and other skills used in both fields.

Anthropology of Business 4 cr with Rhianna Rogers

spaces avail 14 Adv./Liberal fulfills SUNY gen. ed. req | Social Sciences - fully

** Online Study Group **

This study will focus on the application of anthropology to the business and organizational theory and practice. The readings and meetings will focus on the methods and examples of how anthropology is successfully applied to business situations and how anthropological perspectives can help shape student's understanding of the fast changing world we live in. Application of these methods will be reinforced through group projects that incorporate business situations, providing a hands on experience that focuses on the entire process, from client interaction to data gathering and analysis to client presentation.

Biological Anthropology 4 cr with Nathan Whitley-Grassi

spaces avail 14 Intro and Adv./Liberal fulfills SUNY gen. ed. req | Natural Sciences - fully Social Sciences - fully

** Online Study Group **

This study examines biological (or physical) anthropology, or the evolution of the human species and the nature of contemporary human variation. To establish a framework for the study of human evolutionary biology, principles of evolutionary theory, inheritance, population biology and genetics will be examined. As humans are classified within the Order Primates, we will also study the evolution, ecology, and behavior of our closest living relatives: prosimians, monkeys and apes. Fossil evidence for human evolution will then be considered through comparisons with non-human primate ecology and evolution to reconstruct prehistoric hominid evolution. Finally, we discuss modern human variation, paying particular attention how adaptation to environmental stressors like climate, nutrition, and disease have shaped our species - and continue to do so.

Case Management Online Study Group 4 cr with Dan Nyaronga

spaces avail 6 Intro/Liberal fulfills SUNY gen. ed. req | Social Sciences - fully

** Online Study Group ****

This study is an introduction to the concept of case management as it is used to provide human services. It will enable students to: define and describe the process of case management as it has evolved in human service delivery. Students are encouraged to think critically about the material covered and demonstrate understanding of the three phases of case management: assessment, planning, and implementation.

Cultural Diversity in Human Services 4 cr with Dan Nyaronga

spaces avail 6 Adv./Liberal fulfills SUNY gen. ed. req | Social Sciences - fully

** Online Study Group ****

A vibrant human services workplace is created with diversity of opinions and approaches to performing duties. In this study, students will develop an overall framework for considering the nature of cultural, ethnic and gender and other diversity aspects in the human services work place. Through discussions and assignments, students will explore the upsurge in ethnic awareness, the cult of ethnicity, and how these changes are being reflected in the work place.

Diversity in the Workplace 4 cr with Joel Goldberg

Economic Policy Seminar 4 cr with Frieda Mendelsohn

spaces avail 8 Adv./Liberal

** Online Study Group ****

Public policy issues can be examined from many perspectives, only one of which is economics. In this seminar, you will apply economic analysis to an issue of your choice (subject to instructor approval). You may wish to discuss options before registering. While I will use my website to share content publically, student interaction and written work will occur in the non-public Moodle learning management system. Prerequisite knowledge: You must have knowledge equivalent to introductory or principles of economics (both micro and macro). This study requires advanced level writing skills.

Educational Planning 4 cr with Lokesh Rastogi

spaces avail 15 Intro and Adv./Liberal fulfills SUNY gen. ed. req | Critical Thinking - fully

** Online Study Group ****

The study will serve as a guide to develop the Degree Portfolio for assessment. It will include the degree program, general education grid, rationale and documentation for experiential learning. A student will develop the studies in accordance with his/her concentration guidelines. In the process, knowledge of distinguishing between liberal and concentration studies will be acquired through online learning resources. The contracted studies will be drafted into the degree program to complete the process. This study is for matriculated students.

History of the Western Mind-Online AM Study Group 4 cr with Gregory Edwards

spaces avail 15 Adv./Liberal fulfills SUNY gen. ed. req | Western Civilization - fully

** Online Study Group ****

Prerequisite: World Civilization I or Western Civilization I Advanced-level critical reading and writing skills will be required. One could define the West as a way of thinking about life. At present, Western ideas transcend geographical bounds and have found hospitable abodes in the East as well as in the West. Therefore, it is legitimate to talk about the Westernization of the world. Through this study, the student will examine the development of the Western world view from the time of Moses and Thales to the 18th century Enlightenment. Specifically, the student will consider the contributions made by the Greeks, the Romans, and the Hebrews to the Western mind, and how the tension between humanism and theism have helped shape our thoughts even today. Since this is a reading intensive study, some previous knowledge of Western Civilization is required. Online Study Group: Students will be required to participate in six pre-scheduled study group meetings in real time over the Internet with the instructor and other students in the group. These six real-time online AM study group meeting times are to be determined. Note: this study will use voice-chat activities over the Internet. Students taking this study will need to make sure they have access to a computer that meets the minimum technological requirements which are outlined at the links below. Before enrolling, students should know how to successfully use or have tested the Blackboard/Collaborate web conferencing service on their computer.

Human Computer Interaction 4 cr with Eralda Caushaj

spaces avail 6 Adv./Liberal

** Online Study Group ****

Ubiquitous computing and rich sensor filled environments are finding their way out of the laboratory, not just into movies but also into our workplaces and homes. The computer has broken out of its plastic and glass bounds providing us with networked societies where personal computing devices from mobile phones to smart cards fill our pockets and electronic devices surround us at home and work. The web, too, has grown from a largely academic network into the hub of business and everyday lives. As the distinctions between the physical and the digital and between work and leisure start to break down, human-computer interaction is also changing radically.

Human Development Online Study Group 4 cr with Dan Nyaronga

** Online Study Group ****

The student will seek to gain an understanding of the physical, intellectual, social and emotional growth of humans as they develop through 11 stages of the life span. The focus is the emphasis that development results from the interdependence of all these areas at every stage.

Immigration through Ethnology 4 cr with Rhianna Rogers

spaces avail *CLOSED* Intro and Adv./Liberal fulfills SUNY gen. ed. req | Social Sciences - fully Critical Thinking - partially

** Online Study Group **

This study introduces students to the concepts of US immigration through the anthropological lens of ethnology. In this study, students learn how to describe, analyze, interpret, and explain historic and contemporary immigration patterns as real ethnographers do in the field. Students will work "hands-on" with primary sources (e.g. historic texts, videos, web casts, virtual tours, voice recordings, and artwork) in order to interpret the experiences of various US immigrant groups. Students will further engage with these materials through the completion of two, immigration-oriented participant observation assignments, a survey based project to be conducted during class. Overall, the intent of this study is to introduce students to the concepts, materials, and tools employed by ethnographers and to help them understand the cultural impact immigration has on past and present human behaviors.

Information Security 4 cr with Eralda Caushaj

spaces avail 11 Adv./Liberal

** Online Study Group **

This study is an introduction to cryptography and its application to network and operating system security; secret key and public key cryptographic algorithms; hash functions; authentication; email security; web security; IP security; wireless security; firewalls and intrusion detection techniques; security threats and countermeasures; and legal and ethical issues. In this study the student will: Learn fundamentals of cryptography. Understand information security threats and countermeasures. Acquire background for supporting e-commerce, e-government, critical and e-education. Gain hands-on experience with programming techniques for cryptography. Obtain background for research in information security.

Internet & Culture: An Introduction to Digital Anthropology 4 cr with Rhianna Rogers

The Arts - partially

** Online Study Group **

This study utilizes applied anthropology and media arts to analyze the use of digital artifacts in online cultures. Students will explore specific topics including the role of Online gaming, the impacts of Web 2.0 (Twitter and Facebook) on modern culture and society, and the role the Internet has overall. Students can craft this study specifically to match their interests.

Introduction to Anthropology 4 cr with Rhianna Rogers

spaces avail *CLOSED* Intro/Liberal fulfills SUNY gen. ed. req | Social Sciences - fully

** Online Study Group **

This study is designed to introduce students to the field of Anthropology through an examination of its 4 traditional subfields. It exposes students to both academic and practical aspects of the discipline. Students are encouraged to develop critical thinking skills by gathering information, comparing that information with other sources, and analyzing the results. In doing so, students will be challenged to reach their own conclusions/understandings concerning current anthropological issues. The study will lead students through an introduction to physical anthropology (primatology, hominid evolution, variation in modern humans); cultural anthropology (methods of participant observation, comparative data from both Western and non-Western societies, diversity and unity of culture); archaeology (methods, evidences of the evolution and diffusion of culture), and anthropological linguistics.

Introduction to Archaeology 4 cr with Rhianna Rogers

Basic Communications - partially

Students at Empire State College must be self-directed learners in order to succeed in their studies. This study is designed to help students discover their personal learning styles and develop strategies to help them conquer their course work and get the most from their educational opportunities in college and beyond. This study aims to help students become more self-aware and informed as they pursue a college degree. One half of the study will focus on life skills that help students to manage time, set goals, and make good decisions. In addition, students will be introduced to a variety of valuable learning resources that are available through Empire State College. The second half of this study focuses on strategies necessary to complete college course work. Students will learn how to read actively and think critically, and workshops on academic writing and research will better prepare students for future studies. To encourage self-reflection, students will keep a journal throughout the study. New students will find this study useful as they make the transition into college and prepare for academic success.

*** Meeting dates/time/location not yet determined ***

This study will afford the student an opportunity to gain an in-depth understanding of abnormal psychology/psychopathology by exploring key issues relative to the formation, assessment, and diagnosis of the various psychological disorders. The goal of this study is to present the criteria for diagnosis, as well as become familiar with the symptoms which inform each diagnosis as coded on the Axes of the DSM-IV-TR. Issues of the social construction of abnormality will be examined, as well as cross-cultural aspects of psychopathology. In addition, the student should be able to, with the assistance of the text, identify through case studies the various psychological disorders, etiology, and possible interventions. This is a blended, group study that has an online component as well as 4 in-person meetings. Bi-weekly online discussions will be posted and participation is expected in the form of discussion of the week's topics and responding to the posts of your classmates in a substantive way.

Effective Leadership will integrate theories of leadership, culminating with each student demonstrating a leadership field experience. Students will be able to assess their skills as a leader and create a plan for growth and development for future success. Areas of focus include: leadership roles, theories and styles, creating a shared vision, coaching skills, teamwork and group dynamics, cultural communication and influence, and ethical decision making. Course work will include extensive readings, case studies, written reports, small group projects, presentations and reflections. This course builds on the leadership activity with each student participating. Based on this formal review, personal development plans are created and serve as dynamic documentation of individual professional progress. Each student will be required to create a leadership learning agenda and development plan at the beginning of the semester based on their current leadership experience. The learning agenda will identify goals for achievement and strategies for assessing and improving upon their effectiveness as a leader. This course will be taught onsite at GEICO with seven sessions along with online learning through Moodle learning management system

This advanced study in management and leadership will assist the student in understanding the interconnectivity between strategic positioning, organizational design and individual leadership perspectives. The strategic perspective provides an understanding of the environmental landscape in which businesses compete. The organizational perspective defines the manner in which a business is aligned and structured to compete in the changing contextual and local landscape. The individual perspective focuses on the role of the leader in building effective teams and processes. Course work includes reading case studies, completing self-reflection questionnaires as well as completing some discussion assignments and management research topics. The students will meet with the instructor on 5 Monday nights during the term at the Niagara Falls Culinary Institute. Also, the students will use a learning management system called Moodle, to locate their weekly assignments as well as input their work for instructor review. This will be a blended learning model between 5 meetings and the course work will be imbedded in the online Moodle Learning management system.

Prerequisite: World Civilization I or Western Civilization I Advanced-level critical reading and writing skills will be required. One could define the West as a way of thinking about life. At present, Western ideas transcend geographical bounds and have found hospitable abodes in the East as well as in the West. Therefore, it is legitimate to talk about the Westernization of the world. Through this study, the student will examine the development of the Western world view from the time of Moses and Thales to the 18th Century Enlightenment. Specifically, the student will consider the contributions made by the Greeks, the Romans, and the Hebrews to the Western mind, and how the tension between humanism and theism have helped shape our thoughts even today. Since this is a reading intensive study, some previous knowledge of Western Civilization is required. Students will be required to participate in all six study group meetings at the NFC Fredonia Unit. These will be held (exact dates TBD) from 3pm - 5pm. This study will be blended, to include: Attendance and participation at all study group meetings for discussion. Submission of written assignments and retrieval of important study information on-line through the Moodle learning environment (accessed by registering for the study and going to the MyESC student portal).
